NEON LIGHTS CHAPTER Leadership Lunch & Learn Webinar Series

Presents:

“A Passion for Leadership: Unleashing the Human Potential to Lead”

September 26, 2013 from 12:15 PM to 1:30 PM

Location for in-person attendees:
Jackie DeLuca Boardroom, North East CCAC
40 Elm St. Suite 41-C, Sudbury

Speaker:

Susan Armstrong

In order to inspire and influence others as a health leader, you must first feel good about yourself and your leadership abilities. Leadership starts from within, and whatever is happening inside of you shows on the outside in some way, shape, or form. In this session, Susan will teach you to develop self-awareness; manage your stress and anxiety levels; create opportunity out of adversity; stay positive by harnessing your thoughts, feelings, and word; and lead yourself first and watch others follow.

Susan's Biography:

After suffering from many years of addiction, Susan Armstrong not only survived and recovered, but went on to reinvent herself, climb the corporate ladder, establish her own company, and use her personal experiences as the blueprint to help leaders to be successful and achieve their greatest potential. Today, she is an internationally known speaker, and a gifted personal growth teacher and trainer who works with Fortune 100 companies around the globe. She is also the award-winning author of "An Invisible Prison." With a warm style and entertaining wit, Susan generously shares her hard-won leadership lessons so that health leaders as well as all other leaders can tap into her wisdom to find their own happiness and success.
